

Tunguska

After Three Seconds

Dead still in the city as six million faces drain of blood
Hearts beat in denial, we can't hope to stem the coming flood
This cerberus, it comes for us, we bear a watchful eye
Our natures true now shining through, our lives all consumed by a constant watch of the sky
When the rain pours in we drown in sin to quench our thirst
Now let the end begin, there's something indescribable
In living when the end is so damn close
As we drink the dying dose
Bright sky in the summer shines another day on this failing sphere
Don't breathe too deeply, no time to exhale when the end is near Apothis, who is fueling you to shatter what was whole?
What lies between this holocene and in the great after, who will reclaim this soul?
When the rain pours in we drown in sin to quench our thirst
Now let the end begin, there's something indescribable
In living when the end is so damn close
As we drink the dying dose
We're martyrs to a cause we never knew
When there's nothing left to do but die

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnlyrics.com/>