The Weight

Circus Maximus

Waves have washed me up on your shore.
Smooth seas didn't make me
a good sailor.
I've been living with you
whithin a dream that came alive
on the side.
Caving in
on myself.
Venturing
deeper within me.
I've been eager to pull
to pull out the torn in my side
to feel alive.
Waiting for the call that breaks these walls.
Painting these halls with the weight of it all.
Be the one you want to know the most.
I weigh me down just to pick me up.
I'll show you me like you want me to be.
The weight has made me blind.
Leaving it all in open
for all the world to see.
I'm showing me hope
to make me last.
My dark haunts my presence and have erased my past,
Still the melody in my heart chimed on... chimed on...
It chimed the right tone.
I've been waiting for the call that breaks these walls.
Painting these halls
with the weight of it all.
Be the one you want to know the most.
I weigh me down just to pick me up.
I'll show you me like you want me to be.
The weight has made me blind.
oh, so blind.

I'll show you me
like you want me to be.
Love has made me blind.
