

Waltz

Mike Westbrook

Fetch me a glass, let's fill it with fine romance
Pour slow the wine, then let your eyes kiss mine

 You, you with the charmin' eyes

 Lately I've found myself truly beguiled

 If this is a waltz, then I can't refuse

 To dance with a man like you

She must be fine, she must be enchantingly kind
And she must be fair, never reveal that she cares

 Then, then when you've got her heart

 Spin her around till she begs you to stop

 But this is a waltz and no lady refuses

 To dance with a man like you

And if she inquires the meaning of love

 You'll silence her words with a glance

 And if she desires to wonder and pause

 You'll charmingly ask her to dance

 You promised me that you would forever be kind

 And if meant to be, love would find comfort in time

 Now, now that you feel no more

 How could I follow you out to the floor?

 And now it's a waltz but I have to refuse

 To dance with a man like you

 But this is your waltz and you'll find someone new

 To dance with a man

 To dance with a man like you
