

Out of Exile

Audioslave

When I first came to this island
That I called by my own name
I was happy in this fortress
In my exile I remained But the hours grew so empty
And the ocean sent her waves
In the figure of a woman
She pulled me out to sea When you come down to take me home
Send my soul away
When you come 'round you'll make me whole
Send my soul away On the altar of a sunrise
Was a wedding in the waves
And inside her shone a young light
From her labor I was saved Though I've traveled long in darkness
In her harvest I'm embraced When you come down to take me home
Send my soul away
Yeah, when you come 'round you'll make me whole
Send my soul away Now the spires and the gables
Grow in orchards to the sky
And the blessings on my table
Multiply and divide When you come down to take me home
Send my soul away
Yeah, when you come 'round you'll make me whole
Send my soul away Yeah, when you come down to take me home
When you come 'round you'll make me whole
Yeah, when you come down to take me home Send my soul away
Send my soul away
Send my soul away
Send my soul away
