Darken My Door

Lucero

Advisory - the following lyrics contain explicit language:

Well don't you stop wasting time, come back down the line
I'm right where you left me before
I can't say I've been behaved
You'd not believe me anyways
There's been other women, of courseSo hold me to this one
I won't make the same mistakes anymore
Come on now darlin', please darken my doorWith me is where you belong
So bring yourself back home
We'll tear this town down to the ground
White water tavern nights
Old songs and cheap red wine
There's no finer mess to be foundI'll hold you to this one
I still hear your footsteps crossing the floor
Come on now darlin', please darken my doorYour bare feet on hardwood, that barely make a sound
From the kitchen to the bedroom, with all the lights down
A glass of water, some whiskey, the smoke in your hair
All I taste is the perfume you wear
Oh, that perfume you wearI don't expect that you will stay, gone are the good old days
Damn weren't we sure something else?
I've caused enough trouble here, so girl get it in high gear
And come save me from myselfWe'll hold to this one
I still taste that god awful perfume you wore
Now we'll hold to this one
I won't make the same mistakes anymore
Come on now darlin', please darken my doorAlright, come on now darlin'
Come on now darlin'
Come on now darlin', please darken my door
