

Nocturnal Gaze

Project 86

My closet holds a secret
I know that I can't keep
It whispers my name at night
As I fall asleep When I hear that voice I creep, For forty days
And forty nights
I crawl into your bed
For forty days
And forty nights
You calm the beast inside my head The rattle of chains
Haunts my room
Most every single night
I pull the covers
Across my eyes
But the ghosts are in my mind
And I reach for you even though I'm blind For forty days
And forty nights
I crawl into your bed
For forty days
And forty nights
You calm the beast inside my head I do not dread the silence
When you hold me near
Like a child you cover me
Smothering my fear For forty days
And forty nights
I crawl into your bed
For forty days
And forty nights
You calm the beast inside my head
For forty days
And forty nights
I crawl into your bed
For forty days
And forty nights
You calm the beast inside my head
