

Why

Bethany Dillon

This house is echoing
With the sound of You knocking at the door
But with three locks and the shades down
You are easy to ignore And I've put You on like an old pair of shoes
I've put You off but now I need You And why, this love that never leaves me
Why are You holding me tonight?
Can't deny this love that is given me
Why, this love never leaves You're a good strategy when I need one
An angle when there is none
Like a doormat that always says 'Welcome'
No matter how much dirt I rub on But when I am tired and run through Look over this hill, I'm running to You Why, this love that never leaves me
Why are You holding me tonight?
Can't deny this love that is given me
Why, this love never Love, love, love, love, love, love, love Why, this love that never leaves me
Why are You holding me tonight?
Can't deny this love that is given me
Why, yeah Why? Why are You holding me
You holding me tonight?
I can't deny this love that is given me
Why, this love never leaves
