Sun Song

The Common Linnets

The morning sun brings in the light of all new hope of perfect poetry
The swallows they sing in the day with songs they learn from treetop evergreensThrough heart shaped alibis, I find I find
My little piece of peace
And just outside my window, the soft wind blowsIn the widest of blue skies
Warmest rays of sunshine, my eyes have ever seen
The kind of bright you got to be in
The kind of day that hope believes inOh oh ohI'm caught up in the moment of the dawning day and all that I can be
Yesterday's debts have all been paid
Tomorrow's worries got no hold on meI'm cheating gravity, don't try to try
It comes easily
And anywhere that my heart goes, I'll followIn the widest of blue skies
Warmest rays of sunshine my eyes have ever seen
The kind of bright you got to be in
The kind of day that hope believes inOh oh ohIn the widest of blue skies
Warmest rays of sunshine my eyes have ever seen
The kind of bright you got to be in
The kind of day that hope believes in
