Lucky

Said The Whale

With the dawn we rose aloud
Stretched and yawned
What's left, surveyed around
The humble sound
Searched all of our minds alike
For the faintest cloud
South bound, satisfied
With what we'd foundAfter all the causes we get behind
We can still find us a common ground
Cast down, to the living depths
Unnanounced
What rises up again?
No one knows
What chain do we sit atop
And watch unfold
Each anchor that we set
A different homeIn between all the causes we get behind
We can still find us a common groundWe are lucky and we know it
We clap our hands to show itWith the focus on always moving up
And moving on
We can't rest till we've driven off
And our hearts become
Second best, and left behind
With the weakest pump
What's down, but a safety net
And the softest groundIn between all the causes we get behind
We can still find us a common groundWe are lucky and we know it
We clap our hands to show it
