When You Move

Parachute

I remember, sitting lakeside in September
We watched the sun come up, leaves drift yellow from the shore
You slipped out of your clothes, broke the surface where're you goin'?Never been so in love, water's never been so cruel
Blurrin' out the shape you make, scattering the lines of youWhen you move
When you move
When you moveSwimming over, you eased out up to your shoulders
You told me not to look, stole a glance while you were turned Droplets left your skin, diamonds following your curvesNever been so in love, water's never been so cruel
Running down your silhouette, tracing every part of youWhen you move
When you moveThen the sun broke through, the fog was lifting up
I was so transfixed, as you were drying off
And when you looked at me, eyes the deepest blue
There was nothing else, it was only youWhen you move
When you move
(I've never been so in love)
(I've never been so in love)
When you move
(I've never been so in love)
(I've never been so in love)
