

Oh How I Enjoy the Light

Katatonia

It's us, I liken to a covey, a polar bear has breached a pup
The palace walls are strewn with tapestries
And the window panes are splintered and shattered With a crumbled dog on every landing
And every stranger cowers, the dress is torn
The tone demanding, can I earn this latent strength Would her loins, would yield to I
Beating parades to all the town girls
Here's where we walked, hand in hand Ohh, how I despised it, ohh, how I enjoy the light
Of the first morning, forever
Wisdom, wealth tag on like afterbirth
I will love you forever
