

Sunset

Air Supply

Watching the sun set so low
Tells us that it's time, the day is to end
Nobody cries as it leaves or reaches for the light
But soon back again But then I hear you sigh
And wish that you could stay, I'd like another day with you
Don't want to know where it ends
I'll live with either way, just tell me what I have to do Where is the joy time forgets?
You ask me if I know
It's still as before, up on a breeze, soaring high
It comes alive each day Whenever you call
But now to lose your love
The charm throughout my day
To walk along our paths all alone I have memories, enough to help me find my way
To bring back all the love we've known
