The Letter

Natalie Merchant

If I ever write this letter
Oh the pages I could write
But I don't know where to send it, you have vanished
Heaven knows where you live
Heaven only knows
If I ever write this letter
Bitter words it would contain
Just an unrequited lover
Wishing she had never spoken your name
Had never known your name
But if I ever write this letter
The truth it would reveal
Knowing you brought me pleasure
How I'll often treasure, moments that we knew
The precious, the few
