

He Who Flattened Your Flame Is Getting Torched

Danielson

I recall the day when I was in thee
Thee womb, I could hear you so soon
I will see your face I liked to play alone
Never ever all alone My first day to school was so exciting
Although they all went on and on
Still rest my head for my wrongs High school days are dark
So light the flame
Walking down those halls So light the flame
Learning who I'm not
So light the flame
No idea of who I'm to be My leash was long and so you let me run on Like all good moms and dads must do
Guess I'll have to do it too And while I'm cookin' down
So light the flame
My precious torch burns on and on Set a flame to the daily paper
Cause there is just no justice here
And who really cares Skipping through your fire
The first flame
Light dispelling dark Returning to my roots
Our first flame
Of exactly who Getting to that place
My first flame
Peace runs through my days Finally crawling through
The first flame
With my source, my shield, my you
