Oceanbound

Threshold

every time i try to climb a mountain all i find are steeper ones ahead every time i walk along the highway all you do is push me to the edge i'm not afraidlet the sky become an ocean pull me in above my head won't deny my one devotion lose or win cos i'm not scaredthe higher up you build your walls around me the higher i discover how to fly
won't deny my one devotion lose or win cos i'm not scaredi know the truth of my conscience and i know the lies of my sign i know how it feels to be wanting and i know of the fullness of timei feel a storm across my face as night is falling and i can't see to carry on i know the emptiness of space can hear me calling but i don't know what lies beyondi dream of a world without shadows and i dream of a day without pain i long for perpetual motion and i dream of living againevery time i try to climb the mountain nothing in the world can pull me down
won't deny my one devotion lose or win cos i'm not scared
