

Call the Dawn

Assemblage 23

Two islands far apart that share a raging sea
Two radios tuned in to different frequencies
There are chasms too wide to ever be breached
There are many destinations never meant to be reached
There are footsteps in a journey we will never conclude
There are chapters in this book that we will never read through

Dissolve

Fade out

But don't forget, don't succumb to self-doubt

Be strong

Move on

Allow the setting of the sun to call the dawn
Two stars that share the skies in separate galaxies
Two trees that grow apart, but sway in the same breeze
There are chasms too wide to ever be breached
There are many destinations never meant to be reached
There are footsteps in a journey we will never conclude
There are chapters in this book that we will never read through
Two pairs of feet that walk their own distinctive paths

Two shared disasters each with their own aftermaths
There are chasms too wide to ever be breached
There are many destinations never meant to be reached
There are footsteps in a journey we will never conclude
There are chapters in this book that we will never read through
