

Tangled Web

Ramsay

Oh what a tangled web we weave
When we begin to lie and to decieve You're not the one i thought you'd be Your true colours are showing so clearly You pretend to be gentle and kind When all that was in the back of your mind Spin you silky web of pure deciet
And trap i with your love thats bitter sweetAnd now it all begins to fall apart
We see the true nature of you heart
You should know you cant live a lie
The door to your soul is hidden in your eyesThe trap that you so carefully spun Now begins to become undone
The lies that you used to tell
No longer cast their magic spell
Your lies are like a hang mans rope
With which you used to choke
The breath the life the dreams and hopes Of the ones you dont care aboutand now it all begins to fall apart we see the true nature of your heart
you should know you cant live a lie
the door to your soul is hidden in your eyesnow i hope against all hopes i can be free from this rope i would do anything to be free to get away from the memory of a tangled and bitter web that was placed upon my neck but soon i'll fly far away to a brighter sunny daynow it all begins to fall apart
we see the true nature of your heart
you should know you cant live a lie
the door to your soul is hidden in your eyes it's falling apart yeah
falling apart
the center cannot hold falling apart yeah
falling apart
the center cannot hold Copyright R. Ramsay
