

Marathons

Falling Up

Imagine the silence racing the timeless
Holding defenses
Guiding the blind to exit the lights
You're following this flood We have to push, it comes from the ocean
To follow the darkness
Suffer the most and surface the motion
Now do you understand? We are sailing past your lies
Moving right across your eyes
We are sailing past these lies This is the true direction
This is where we set sail
The secret's coming out No use in your resistance
This is the way back home
We are the lost and found We are the ones called jaded and young
But we have direction
Shadows have come and in them we run
A quiet infection Started with this, the place of the fearless
Taking the dark and
We know the blood that spills like a flood and
Now do you understand? We are sailing past your lies
Moving right across your eyes
We are sailing past these lies This is the true direction
This is where we set sail
The secret's coming out No use in your resistance
This is the way back home
We are the lost and found Imagine the silence racing the timeless
We are the ones caught holding defenses
Guiding the blind to exit the lights
Your shadows look up and following this light We have the push, it comes from the ocean
It started with this to follow the darkness
Suffer the most and surface the motion
Now do you understand? This is the true direction
This is where we set sail
The secret's coming out No use in your resistance
This is the way back home
We are the lost and found This is the true direction
This is where we set sail
The secret's coming out We are sailing past your lies
We are sailing past these lies
We are sailing past your lies

Moving right across your eyes
We are sailing past these lies

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnlyrics.com/>