

Nothing but Time (Learn to Let Go)

At Long Last

Learn To Let Go
Carry yourself like the world is off of your shoulders for once You're getting older alone, and sinking deeper for months
And all that time you spent next to the hospital bed, you put on brand new sheets and think of what she said How she holds your heart, how you're the greatest man, how you're the only one that could ever understand It's been so long since I've been without you, It's weird to think I can still breathe without you
There is no rhyme or reason needed to say the things I want to
There is no time or season left that's ours, but we'll hold hands soon You gave up, I gave in, though it's hard to defend But I hope you're safe and sound tonight, like you were here by my right side
With nothing but time
Learn to let go
Today was a lot like Hell, with more suits and ties, cold sweats, and wet eyes
New faces of old friends draw us pictures for our heads to color in I'm alone, I'm a lie, I'm less of alive than I thought I could be and hoped I would be I'm alone, I'm a lie, less of alive, but you keep me breathing, you're all I'm seeing
