The Phone Call

NoMeansNo

I had to call, I know it's late
I had to talk, I had to hear you
Say something, say anythingThe line is silent but I feel your breath
That silence - it's death, it's death
It's killing meThere is so much that I regret
I can't exist like this
I need forgivenessPlay along now ,keep him on nowAcross the boundaries of time and space
We will hunt him with our deadly trace
I was sitting home on my own
I just thought I would phone
Just thought I would phone, yeahI got your number and I know where you live
I don't wanna hurt you, I just want to give
My heart my heart, do you hear it, Il rip it outI still hear those cries and those tears
That look in your eyes
I just wanna apologize
I sorry, god, I sorryAll that Ie done all my mistakes
I can't live with my disgrace, I damnedPlay along now, sing a song nowWith the aid of our technology
We will suck him down eventuallyI was sitting home on my own I
Just thought I would phone
Just thought I would phone, yeahListen to the bells, listen to the bellsI am a crab, I live in a shell
You call this living, I call it
Hell! I living in hellI see your picture on the bedroom door
That's all I have to hang onto AnymoreThat's all Ie got that's just one voice, it's loud and it's clear
The day of judgement, it's herePlay along now, sing along nowI was sitting home on my own
I just thought I would phone
Just thought I would phone, yeah
