Before the Morning Sun

Lukas Graham

Sitting awake before the morning sun
Only 'cause I couldn't fall asleep while the night was young
I'm restless, can't call myself stressless
These past weeks have left me breathless and senselessMy brother from another mother lost a brother
My father lost his father,
I lost a friend, something that I couldn't comprehend
We'll never see these men again
Once upon a time life was so innocentWe're past the past
The now is now
The future will be here in a minute
But I don't care what's going downAnyhow, I miss the time with the many smiles
When we could always stretch it for a little while
Now you're gone and it feels like I'm alone
Oh goddammit, how I miss you soSometimes it will feel time can stop
Sometimes I feel like giving up
But then I hear a voice inside of me
Saying: "Better die with your chin up, than living on your knees"Daydreaming is OK sometimes
But to face the facts really hurts
And when you finally feel the weight of your burden
Get up again if you kiss the dirtI'd rather live one day as a lion
Than live a hundred years as a sheep
I'd rather reign in Hell than serve in Heaven
Live my dream out in reality and not in my sleepThe past is gone
The now is now
The future will be here in a minute
But I don't care what's going down, what's going downPeople tell me: "Pick yourself up off the road"
Can't I just stay and get squashed like a little toad?
They'll say you have a burden to carry
Somewhere along the line there's a girl to marryBut don't worry, I'll get up
I won't give it up even if it won't stop
Hurting in my heart now that we're apart
My chronic pain is about to start, will it be hard?I'd rather live one day as a lion
Than live a hundred years as a sheep
I'd rather reign in Hell, than serve in Heaven
Live my dream out in reality and not in my sleepThe past is gone
The now is now
The future will be here in a minute
But I don't care what's going down'Cause we're past the past
The now is now

The future will be here in a minute
But I don't care what's going down
