Remind My Heart

Lea Salonga

Pull back the curtain, open up the blind
Let the light in the window I kept closed for all this time
I wanted to forget the pain of falling
But you maybe remember now
Dreams weren't always made to be brokenWhen you hold me in your arm
Remind my heart of the way love should be
In the moment I let go
Remind my heart that you're really there for me
Like the sun breaking through the dark, remind my heartCan it be this simple, can it be this true?
All the fears I've held so long swept away by you
Slowly now, you bring me to my senses
And I can feel the warmth again
Of the flame I thought I'd lost foreverWhen you hold me in your arm
Remind my heart of the way love should be
In the moment I let go
Remind my heart that you're really there for me
Like the sun breaking through the dark, remind my heartWhat I missed so long
(Remind my heart)
Of the tenderness and the feeling you remind
(Remind my heart)
How love can make you strong
Ooh baby, you're making me strongWhen you hold me in your arm
Remind my heart of the way love should be
In the moment I let go
Remind my heart that you're really there for me
Like the sun breaking through the dark, remind my heartIn the moment I let go, remind my heart
(Remind my heart)
Remind my heart that you're really there for me
Remind my heart of the way this love should be Remind my heart, remind my heart
