Angelica

Scott Walker

Each night I meant to say
I missed her through the day
But I'd forget it
I never said itI passed the flower shop
Lord knows I meant to stop
But I said tomorrow
Perhaps tomorrowTomorrow there'd be time
There'd always be another spring
Time to make her laughter ring
Time to give her everythingAngelica, my Angelica
There's so much you never knew
So much I always meant to say
And do, for you, for you
AngelicaAnd then the cold winds came
And when I spoke her name
And felt her near me
She couldn't hear meHer shadow had been cast
Too many springs had passed
For Angelica
Sweet AngelicaNow in my solitude
I tend the flowers that I buy
As they slowly fade and die
Watered by the tears I cryfor my Angelica, my Angelica
There's so much you never knew
So much I always meant to say
And do, for you, for youAngelica
Angelica
Angelica
