

Grace

Lloyd Cole & The Comotions

Once you were an angel, Jesse honey is it hard to take
Does it feel so bad to be 28 you were 23
And you could do anything now you open your mouth
And spit the gutter out

I was walking down by the river Thames
I decided that I should throw me in

Because you broke my heart and you made me weep

In the name of your sensitivity, still once you were an angel Did nobody tell you Jesse honey oh you look so pale

And old and so very I'll at ease these days

So you tell yourself that you'll never win

And you drown your sins in amphetamine

Do you weary so of that bitter taste

So you spit in my face just to keep you entertained

Still I can only love you I have no option but to

Is hard to take is it is it hard to swallow

Is it is it hard to take from grace, once you were an angel

Did nobody tell you Jesse honey is it hard to take

Does it feel so bad to be 28 you were 23

And you could do anything

Now you open your mouth and you spit the gutter out

Out in the summer rain, you will begin again

Out in the summer rain, we will begin again

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnyrics.com/>