

Empty Palms

TTNG

when we embarked thought i had caught
the dark behind the new start can't open up
my facade
formed foundations
all falling apartsubtle if you can't see behind my smile
you'd see me face down
beneath the silt and sands buried by my thoughts
the pressure gets so intense at these depths squeezing breath 'till nothing's left to let the weight of my chestmy closed tight teeth feed self-esteem
to mislead how i've been an unseen sinking anchor i'll pull you under fingers can slip
let loose their grip
to our nights entwined
our lives combined
to find tonight
two holding hands now halved two empty palms apartit's best we part i am broken and no good for you
