

Destiny

Ben Rubino & Bo Steele

She's a beautiful star, it's really not that hard for me to see. Why you loved it when she smiled, her innocent style, so unique. Well, she told me, to listen to these words closely. Because I know it's hard to see her, and understand why it had to be her destiny.

Well she wore another crown, that she wears while looking down, and her dress is laced with gold. And her story shall be told. It will never be the same and they will never know your pain. But if you ask, he'll answer, "Thank you for his tiny dancer."

She loved to dance and sing, and be onstage. Just like me. So why am I still here? Make this more clear Destiny. Oh yes, I'll dance with you one day, and sing with you one day. She promised me. And we will change the world together, and we can live forever, you and me.

Well she wore another crown, that she wears while looking down, and her dress is laced with gold. And her story shall be told. It will never be the same and they will never know your pain. But if you ask, he'll answer, "Thank you for his tiny dancer."

(Destiny singing): I hear you when you pray mom, Every word you say mom, just love me. But it's okay now, it's okay to fall asleep. Rest in peace. Not only can I dance mom, but it taught me how to fly! Just wait and see. You gotta keep your faith strong, so we can meet again mom. (Bo Steele) She told me (Destiny) So you can see.

(Bo Steele): That I wore another crown, that I wear while looking down, and my dress is laced with gold. And my story was just told. We will meet again, and I will take my mother's hand. I promised her, I'll tell you the answers. She said God thanks you for his tiny dancer.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>