

Kentucky

Panopticon

The night before your wedding
I dreamed what I would say
I'd beg you for forgiveness

For all the mess I've madeI dreamed that you were gracious
I dreamed you wished me well
I dreamed that you were vicious

You damned me straight to HellBut, oh sweet Kentucky no matter where I land

I was just a boy for you and he will be your man
I was just a boy for you and he will be your manI'd tell you that I'm lonely
And fame has let me down

Living like a stranger
Traveling town to townAnd all my aspirations

Don't amount to much
The wine and the women

Are such a shameful crutchBut, oh sweet Kentucky no matter where I land
'Cause I was just a boy for you and he will be your man

And I was just a boy for you and he will be your manI know you will be happy and I'll be in the band
'Cause I was just a boy for you and he will be your man
And I was just a boy for you and he will be your man
