

One In a Million

Echo Orbiter

It was the morning of June 13th '94; I woke up and said
?From here on out we'll move along with no knowledge of who is gone?
The ties that bind weaken with time
It's gonna be lonely around here
Inflated ages decide if it's worth killing another year; again

Retrieve the teenage insight
If you knew then what you know right now
Present another chance to say all the things you've never said
And do the things that went undone
News reel films patrol the brain
Eating up thoughts before they resign to death whispers and flies

You are one in a million
Maybe you are one in a million
Maybe you are one in a million
Maybe you are one in a million

Lyrics submitted by Cab.

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnllyrics.com/>