

Who's The Blonde Stranger?

Jimmy Buffett

Nothing like this way out in west Texas
Galveston Bay is a whole other world
My wife's in her room getting over her sunburn
How would Louis Lamore get me next to that girl? She tells me her tan is the same way all over
She asks me to dance and says, "Keep your boots on"
She never met a number one cowboy
We rolled in the sand and drank rum until dawn Who's the blonde stranger who entered my life
Making me over in the moonlight?
This side of Texas is all new to me
Who's the blonde stranger who lives by the sea? I stayed up all night and for me that's the first time
Sneak in the room just as cool as I can Pull back the sheets and the bed is all empty
Except for a note left by some guy named Dan My head got all light and the room started spinning
I stepped outside just to get some fresh air
Out on a wave was my own darling Lola
And some pretty boy with bleach in his hair Who's the blonde stranger out there with my wife?
What were they doing in the moonlight?
This side of Texas is all new to me
Who are these strangers who live by the sea? Back on the ranch and everything's normal
Beach blanket bingo comes on the TV
We talk in our sleep and then the next morning
I ask her who's Dan and she asks who's Marie? Who's the blonde stranger who entered my life
Making me over in the moonlight?
This side of Texas is all new to me
Who's the blonde stranger who lives by the sea? Who's the blonde stranger who entered my life
Making me over in the moonlight?
This side of Texas is all new to me
Who's the blonde stranger who lives by the sea?

Songwriters

Mike Utley; Jimmy Buffett; Will Jennings Published by

BLUE SKY RIDER SONGS (WARNER); WARNER-TAMERLANE PUBLISHING CORP. Song
Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>