

Grey Sky Eyes

Carbon Leaf

Grey sky, always in your eye
Where is the girl behind the cloud?
Grey sky, always floating by
But I only peek when I'm allowed
You welcomed me in and your veil is so thin
But the mystery continues to grow
You say you must realize that my grey sky eyes
Neither rain, nor they glow, now you know
So I'll try to not act so surprised
I'll feel my way, I'll underplay
All my curiosity and hide
All the questions in my skin
You welcomed me in and your veil is so thin
But the mystery continues to grow
You say you must realize that my grey sky eyes
Neither rain, nor they glow, now you know
Grey sky, I think I changed my mind
I find no need to pretend
Grey sky, would you allow me to be
So into you, my friend?
You welcomed me in and your veil is so thin
But the mystery continues to grow
You say you must realize that my grey sky eyes
Neither rain, nor they glow, now you know
