Twenty Years

Something for Kate

he is alive and kicking he calls it gymnastics, calls it velocity and you spend twenty years climbing and never change your mind and you call it the path of least resistance and you have everything you ever needand you sing if you can't beat them join them all the way up to your floor memorize and repeat it and sing it like you mean itthey are talking to me and i am nowhere to be found there's somewhere else i had to be call it necessity, mutiny, entropy they think i'm down they tell me i should brighten up but that's just 'cause they don't know an explosion when they see oneand they sing if you can't beat them join them
all the way up to your floor
memorize and repeat it
and sing it like you mean it all the way home to your front door yeah you better believe it sing it like you mean it(repeat first chorus)

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/