

Golden Rules

The Saturdays

Hush now children lullaby
Steal what you can't borrow
Oh how brave you are
And your world has come so far Are you saved?
Have you been told?
Right is the enemy
Too bad, too late Write this down
I don't believe in sanity
Or reading the instructions
Throw 'em all away, hey Golden rules, Sunday school
Crazy Wheels go round
Angry machines, designing your destiny
Digital dreams with no heart, no soul Golden rules, Sunday school
You're all crazy now Here's the situation
All the rest are gettin' pretty, you're melting in the city
Father says to mother, "Yeah
If you really wanna trash it go ahead and smash it" Are you saved?
Now when you go to sleep tonight
One way or another
If you don't die before you wake
Do it unto others Golden rules, made more fools
Sunday school, you're all crazy Hush now children don't you cry
We've just killed tomorrow
How sad you are
That your world has gone too far
