Saber-Tooth & Bone

Surfer Blood

I've waited so long to find you
To see you clearly
Hidden in fog, just out of my reach
I knew that you'd find meI was zoomed in on a narrow bend
Of car alarms
Now I can hear the french horns playing
Through all the dissonanceSometimes I can dwell on shortcomings
But you can see the better part of me
You know our lives have only just begun
And we'll be old and gray before it's all done
You know that I have searched the earth for youEvery day, we'll be clearing the cobwebs away
Trying hard to make ourselves a home
Out of cinnamon and chrome
And the day we finally make it ours
Then we can never be undoneI've counted the hours
And I'm sure we both are ready
Pacing the floor like something is missing
I dream of past livesSometimes I can dwell on shortcomings
But you can see the better part of me
You know our lives have only just begun
And we'll be old and gray before it's all done
You know that I have searched the earth for youEvery day, we'll be clearing the cobwebs away
Trying hard to make ourselves a home
Out of sabre-tooth and bone
And the day we finally make it ours
Then we can never be undone
