

Bosco

Placebo

I love you more than any man, but something's getting in the way.
I do you harm because I can for the second time today.
Victims we are not of happenstance, but you're a victim all the same.
Stuck inside a circumstance with your confusion and your blame.[Chorus]
And when I get drunk, you take me home and keep me safe from harm.
When I get drunk, you take me home.I ask you for another second chance, but then I drink it all away.
And I get bellicose when you react for the frustration and dismay.
I was so delicate when we began, so tender when I spoke your name.
But now I'm nothing but a partisan to my compulsion and my shame.[Chorus]
And when I get drunk, you take me home and keep me safe from harm.
When I get drunk, you take me home.You know, I'm grateful, I appreciate.
But in fact, it's pitiful how I suck you dry.
How I suck you dry.
How I suck you dry.
How I suck you.
How I suck you dry.
How I suck you dry.
How I suck you dry.I love you more than any man, but I seem to lay it all to waste.
I do you harm because I can with a joke in questionable taste.
I've such duplicity at my command, so I keep on lying to your face,
Then I run away to wonderland, and disappear without trace.[Chorus]
And when I get drunk, you take me home and keep me safe from harm.
When I get drunk, you take me home.You know, I'm grateful, I appreciate.
But, in fact, it's pitiful how I suck you dry.
How I suck you dry.
How I suck you dry.
How I suck you.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>