Beg To Differ

Hevein

Slow down, slow down
I lived a life with no regrets till you came around
You're lost, I'm found
You had a hold on me but now it's slippin' away
You used me
Never would've thought you'd try to lie and deceive me
I'm sure you thought I'd be easy
You had a chance but now there's nothing that you can call your own
Why does it feel like I have been the only one
Who stopped and swam up the river?
If everything you said to me was a lie
Then I really think that I beg to differ
No time, I'm gone
You had your chance, now let me show you the way around
Your loss, mine now
I let you call it once, you'll never do it again
You fooled me once
And then you should have figured
Now there's just one space that you can fill but it's empty
You'll never find a place that you can call your own now
Why does it feel like I have been the only one
Who stopped and swam up the river?
If everything you said to me was a lie
Then I really think that I beg to differ
I'll never understand
I'll never understand
I'll never understand
I don't *ing understand why
You used me
Never would've thought you'd try to lie and deceive me
I'm sure you thought I'd be easy
Why does it feel like I have been the only one
Who stopped and swam up the river?
If everything you said to me was a lie
Then I really think that I beg to differ
I'm gone
