

Stay Visible

Simple Minds

The road opens wide
There's space here for two of us
If I could slip under the wire
Wed wait here, just stay here a while
Slumped, the bodys tired
And this fear never lets me sleep
Your smile, this trial elates
In your eyes, I see mother's open gates
If fortune could smile
Thered be room here for two of us
And I would burn myself through the wire
With this hate concentrated
Unearthed, disparate in time
Once in a while
If peace held for two of us
If we could show mercy awhile
With patience transcending
This cold, never ending, through time
If home still matters
If these bones were not so shattered
What state, so desperate
Within a hollow shell, in a forgotten state
Come tear the dirt from my eyes
