

Day After Day

Julian Lennon

I have walked through the fire as an ordinary man
And if I die, I die in peace, part of all that God has planned 'Cause I believe in you and the best is yet to come You've been alone it's true, daddy's work is never done In my dreams, every night, I see the waves upon the sand
And you and I walk alone and there's a ring upon your hand Yes I believe in you and if my prayers are answered now
I'm coming back, to you, I'm gonna find a way somehow I'm making my way, each morning I pray for you,
day after day
I'll turn every stone, until I get home to you, day after day Where you are is all there is, the only place I want to be
And love is war and war is cold, when you're so far across the sea Still I'm alive, still in love, I hope this letter finds you well
Through the blood, through the flames, I can hear those wedding bells I'm making my way, each morning I pray for you, day after day I'll turn every stone, until I get home to you, day after day Darling you know the winds of peace are blowing (They say the answers written in the wind) Still I can hear the fallen angels singing (Our love is stronger than the million miles that separate us) I'm making my way, each morning I pray for you,
day after day
I'll turn every stone, until I get home to you, day after day I'm making my way, each morning I pray for you,
day after day
I'll turn every stone, until I get home to you, day after day
