

One Day

Ian Kelly

One day, I will have some answers,
I will be a wise man, I will speak the truth
One day, I will see much clearer
I will have a good plan, I will teach our youth
I'm not too old to die young, I am lost alone
I wish you would concede to form a pair
We all know that it is so wrong, to stand here on our own
We're blinded by the greed that we all share Where it's cold no one seems to care
Where it's cold no one's there I live, in a territory, where it shouldn't matter, where you're from Back when, we had pride and glory,
We were looking after, everyone
We never could appreciate, the desert in the snow
We're drowning as we drown the polar bear
And I'm amazed that the debate, is sinking oh so low
In the avarice that is spreading everywhere Where it's cold no one seems to care
Where it's cold no one's there With the right lies and the right smiles you can do a lot of wrong
I'll pretend that I don't know nothing changes from a song
I guess we're all disconnected, some are red and some are blue
Maybe it's time for some purple to get through Where it's cold no one seems to care
Where it's cold no one's there
