The Only Sounds

Wet Wet Wet

The weight of the world's on my shoulders
Like I've never known before
And the winter winds blown colder
And I just can't take anymore
Feel I'm running down a dead end street
Trying to change my direction
All my troubles weighing hard on me
I'm going down, down, down
The only sounds I wanna hear
Is the music of the ocean
And the rhythm of you breathing in my ear
As we drift away
And the only sight I wanna see
Is the light of your emotion
And the look of love from you to me
As the night turns into day
The noise in my head, getting louder
And it's spinning me around
Something tugging at my sleeves trying to tell me
I'm too high of the ground
I can't explain it to myself
I feel I'm gonna drown

Standing out here in the pouring rain
I'm going down, down, down
The only sounds I wanna hear
Is the music of the ocean
And the rhythm of you breathing in my ear
As we drift away
And the only sight I wanna see
Is the light of your emotion
And the look of love from you to me
As the night turns into day
So whisper words, so soft and low
The words of love that heal
And ease my soul
The only sounds I wanna hear
Is the music of the ocean
And the rhythm of you breathing in my ear

As we drift away
And the only sight I wanna see
Is the light of your emotion
And the look of love from you to me
As the night turns into day
