

East Coast Winters

Anthony Green

Anyone who walks down my path
Anyone who walks down my path after it snows
Will cover up their footprints And every time you shut me in I shiver in the cold
And every day I stay in bed I get a little warm Anyone who walks through my door is already done, is already done for
And if you walk a mile in my shoes, you'd never choose...
You'd never come back here And every time you shut me in I shiver in the cold
And every day I stay in bed I get a little warm As far as I can tell, you never got it right
And everyone I know is all but turned away
Scattered in the dark
Seen this place a dozen times before
But not as empty, as empty as it is
Anyone who walks down my path
