

Someone Special

Garuna

I wake up to the sound of rain upon my sill
Pick up the pieces of my yesterday old thrill
 Can I deliver this used up shiver
 To how I pronounce my life
And I leave it up to faith to go by its own will
 Back row to the left, a little to the side
 Slightly out of the place
Look beyond the light, where you'd least expect
 There's someone special
 A foggy morning greets me quietly today
I smell a fragrance in the wind blowing my way
 And ever further I run to find her
 I yearn to define my life
Placing my faith in chance to meet me in half way

 Slightly out of the place
Look beyond the light, where you'd least expect
 There's someone special
 And she's here to write her name
 On my skin with kisses
In the rain, hold my head and ease my pain
 In a world that's gone insane
 Slightly out of the place
Look beyond the light, where you'd least expect
 There's someone special
