

No One To Blame

Villagers

Excuse me while I die
A million times before I meet
Your eyes with mine
Find all the promises you'll make
Before you leave me on the shelf
Then I'll have no one to blame
Guess I've got no one to blame
Excuse me while I try
To be somebody that you might Decide you'll like
Enough to come over to my place
And that's my heart begins to swell
I forget to where that face
That you've got to know so well
And you'll see me as I am
Just an empty, broken shell
Then I'll have no one to blame
guess I've got no one to blame
But myself
See there's a mystery in your eyes
A kind of swimming pool with swimming fools
Like me
So, excuse me while I fly
High up above this broken town
As I look down
On all the people as they say
That they're always here to help
In my heart I know, what they
They couldn't catch me if I fell
Only you could take the weight
Of this ancient, wicked spell
Then you'll have no one to blame guess you've got no one to blame
Then you'll have no one to blame
but yourself
See, there's a mystery in your eyes
A kind of swimming pool
With swimming fools

Like me
Oh Mr. Mystery
