Before I Fade

Alorion

The more I break
As I continue this
And here Iâ€™ll stay
Bury me, Bury me
Know that time will take
Everything out of me
And I will sink
Bury me, Bury me
In my own grave

Your siren song still echoes
Through the cave of loneliness
A million words been written
A thousand pages burned
A hundred lessons given
And I still have yet to learn

Now iâ€™m on my knees
Asking why did I need you in my life
Now iâ€™m in this room
Craving the touch of you
All because I fear
What letting go might do

The more I break
As I continue this
And here Iâ€™ll stay
Bury me, Bury me
Know that time will take
Everything out of me
And I will sink
Bury me, Bury me

Now I know weâ€™ve all sat there
Lying awake as if sleep is even an option
The darkness is blinding, but the ceiling is vivid and mocks me
It doesnâ€™t speak or utter words
And I find that to be the issue
Because no matter how long I stare and question
Iâ€™ll never receive an answer as to why I still miss you

Drowning in the depths of remorseful tides
Iâ€™m waving a white flag
Iâ€™m surrendering, Iâ€™m surrendering
Iâ€™ve given and given everything
But I canâ€™t take the thought of you
This is me, This is now
Where my life has fallen to
Lying so alone
Trying to make sense in any sense of the word
Attempting to find logic
When everything is absurd
I often question if iâ€™m alive or just barely breathing
If iâ€™m still under the sheets with you
Or still alone under that same, quiet ceiling
And it must be said, it must be done
And now I must insist
That the Love that we thought we had Just simply did not exist.

Take me away
Dear Numbness, please take me
All I know
This burden thrives
Deep inside
Itâ€™s so alive

I watched the spaces where our hands laced together
Begin to separate wider than ever
To the point where I could feel coldness in the warmth we created
And now this portrait we painted
Once full of enriching colors with hope that it stated
Is now becoming fainted and faded
Leaving only an outline of a love thatâ€™s been hated
Our true value has been weighted
Yet in the heat of every moment, we try and conduct reasoning in our madness
To wear masks over our sadness
And pretend that weâ€™re dancing in light, when weâ€™re really drowning in blackness
Our palettes have a constant taste of malice
â€˜Cause we were two beings that were searching for a non-existent balance
Itâ€™s time to end this madness

The more I break
As I continue this
And here Iâ€™ll stay
Bury me, Bury me

Know that time will take
Everything out of me
And I will sink
Bury me, Bury me

Because everything I ever asked
Was nothing you ever gave
Youâ€™re the one who killed our love
So iâ€™ll be the one to dig the grave
Stuck in a fragile memory that wonâ€™t seem to shatter
A vibrant pattern that has lost all itâ€™s matter

A vibrant pattern, A lifeless matter
When will this break, What will it take?

So before I fade into the dark
And I wave goodbye to that final spark
Just please believe that I believed in Us
And that our love has made itâ€™s fateful mark

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/