Love Song to a Vampire

Steve Hackett

You came to me at a dark hour in time
Your lips tasted so sublime
You drink in my hopes, my bleeding heart
You promised me a brand new startYou told me I wasn't born 'til we met
My life before a distant regret
You said that my friends were no good for me
You claimed only you could set me freeEach time you enslave me
To your deepest desire
Once again I sing a love song to a vampireYou demanded my undying devotion
Took over all my emotions
But you were away for many a night
Secretly living another lifeI searched for a real love,
I ran away
And found a warm place to stay
But I heard your cries, your anger, your lies
A flash of your eyes pulled me back insideEach time you enslave me
To your deepest desire
Once again I sing a love song to a vampireWeaker and colder each time I retuned
Desperate to please I never learned
The door was unlocked but my heart was in jail
Caught in the web of your spellI must finally stake my claim
Re-take my own life once again
Set me free, let me breathe
I'll shed the sunlight on your deceitEach time you enslave me
To your deepest desire
Once again I sing a love song to a vampire

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/