

Learning Your Language

LeAnn Rimes

This is, this is all new to me
To trust, to trust this trusting thing
See I'm a book of insecurities
The kind a boy puts down and never ever reads
Never knew your kind existed
I was holding out for superman
I make it so complicated
You make it so simple when You say hold me, then you let the silence speak
You love me till the monsters are gone
You don't condemn me when I read your words wrong
Cause I'm still learning your language
Learning your language
Wish I, wish I could rush the flower to bloom
My child, my child wants to go from crawl to run too soon
Patience, patience has never been a friend of mine
Damn well gonna break my will from time to time to time
Sure you know what you're getting into
Bet you didn't read the fine print
Still a lot of ruins to dig through
Still a lot of sins to repent But you say hold me, then you let the silence speak
You love me till the monsters are gone
You don't condemn me when I read your words wrong
'Cause I'm still learning your language
Learning your language Teach me, every syllable
When to move in, when to oull back
Just lay it all out there
Reach me
When no one's ever reached before
Free me from myself
So hold me, let the silence speak
Love me till the monsters are gone
Don't condemn me when I read your words wrong
'Cause I'm still learning your language
Learning your language
Learning your language
I'm still, I'm still

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnyrics.com/>