

Blessed

Hobo Jim

Howling wolves, windy nights
Reading books by candle light
In that little country cabin In the hills
Calling owls, just because, playing cards and shooting guns long ago, I remember it so well
I see you trudging through the snow, making coffee on the stove, splitting wood, laughing all the time
All alone you and me, we were wild and we were free
We were crazy, and didn't have a dime
When a man who has a dream, finds a woman who believes
There is nothing in the world they can't do
In my heart, in my soul, you're the one who's made me whole
I am blessed by the love of you
By the warmth of the fire, we watch the sun retire
And give way to that starry, starry night
Sharing dreams, stealing kisses, holding hands and making wishes
Knowing you'll always be by my side
As it all comes back to me, with the sweetest memories
The laying down, with that vision in our heads
And the chill of the night, sleeping close and holding tight
Little baby shoes hanging by the bed
When a man who has a dream, finds a woman who believes
There is nothing on this earth they can't do
In my heart, in my soul, you're the one who's made me whole
I am blessed by the love of you
When a man who has a dream, finds a woman who believes
There is nothing on this earth they can't do
In my heart, in my soul, you're the one who's made me whole
I am blessed by the love of you, I am blessed by the love of you.
