

Death After Life

Landscapes

One less nightmare, wondrous dream
I swear that this world will be the death of me a cold stare, resides behind these eyes that I'm sure, you swore, would never come back Mother save me, Father save me
I fear that this earth could be the death of us all
Even though i'm sinking in deep sleep,
I'm still calling your name,
every time i fall....

Between these endless wrong ways and long hard days I've been losing my mind, crushing down on my head below the silence and death obsessed, I gain ground in distance, amongst ourselves Why is it I dive, and fall in-sync, into the waking hours, when half asleep Unless I'm crazy, I'm near sure my memory's fading At the edge of the night, beyond these filthy streets
They say our failures reflect your life in dreams
But some fall and die of depression, cause these nights are unforgiving One less nightmare, wondrous dream
a cold stare, resides behind these eyes
that i'm sure, you swore, would never come back
Mother save me, Father save me
Even though i'm sinking in deep sleep,
I'm still calling your name,
every time i fall....

One less nightmare, wondrous dream
a cold stare, resides behind these eyes
that i'm sure, you swore, would never come back
Mother save me, Father save me
Even though i'm sinking in deep sleep,
I'm still calling your name,
every time i fall....
