It's All About to Change

Tree63

It's the same thing, the same dream every time
You're running in a straight line, speeding through the light
And you're stronger than you've ever been
In a place you've never seen and everything is rightSomething calling, something's haunting you
And you want it, and you want itIt's all about to change, nothing stays the same
It's getting closer every single day
It's all about to change, it'll never be the same
Any day now, you will start againAnd you wake, a stranger to your bed
But science tells your head that nothing looks the same in the light
And your day's spent looking for the dream
Is it going to come again? Could anything be so bright?Hear it calling, all day long
And you want it, and you want itIt's all about to change, nothing stays the same
It's getting closer every single day
It's all about to change, it'll never be the same
Any day now, you will start againDon't you wanna go, don't you wanna go?
It's the same thing, everytimeIt's all about to change, nothing stays the same
It's getting closer every single day
It's all about to change, it'll never be the same
Any day now, you will start againIt's all about to change, it'll never be the same
Any day now, you will start againWell, everything you know and everything that you believe
Far away, far away
