

The Laws of Digging

Freya

The first law: When (one) him finds (oneself) himself in a hole of one's own digging is stop digging

The second law: When someone you dig stops digging you - you gotta let them go
You've got to know when to get off the train

You've got to know when to catch it again

In life there's a place to begin

As long as you know the laws of digging
Another law is to dig for spare change

If you meet someone, who needs it more

The golden law is to dig unto others

As you would have them dig unto you
You've got to know when to get off the train

You've got to know when to catch it again

In life there's a place to begin

As long as you know the laws of digging
Dig for oil

And dig for gold

In everyone you meet

And just maybe you'll find it -
You've got to know when to get off the train

You've got to know when to catch it again

In life there's a place to begin

As long as you know the laws of digging
You've got to know when to get off the train

You've got to know when to catch it again

In life there's a place to begin

As long as you know the laws of digging
You've got to know when to get off the train

You've got to know when to catch it again

In life there's a place to begin

As long as you know the laws of digging
Dig for oil

And dig for gold in

Dig for oil

And dig for gold

In everyone you meet

And just maybe you'll find it
