Lonely Girl

Craig's Brother

Winter breaks upon that lonely girl
A tell tale stomach and a broken world and only grief
December finds her in a world of care
Nine months swollen and abandoned
There without relief from all this griefHer fear matched only by her appetite
Not knowing one day she would see the night
When all these troubles had been made all right
And that child would praise herHide your tears now put your pain away
Let your fears belong to yesterday, you're not aloneDecember makes it's yule tide round again
A lonely girl lies lost in labor pain beyond relief
Water breaks inside that lonely girl
A child is brought into this broken world
So small, so weak, he knows no grief
